About Dan Senor

Dan Senor, adjunct senior fellow for Middle East studies at the Council on Foreign Relations, has long been involved in policy, politics and business in the Middle East. As a senior foreign policy advisor to the U.S. Government, he was one of the longest serving civilian officials in Iraq, for which he was awarded the highest civilian honor by the Pentagon. Senor's analytical pieces are frequently published by the Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, The Washington Post, the Weekly Standard and Time.

START-UP NATION addresses the trillion-dollar question: How is it that Israel - a country of 7.1 million people, only sixty years old, surrounded by enemies, in a constant state of war since its founding, with no natural resources - produces more start-up companies than large peaceful and stable nations like Japan, China, India, Korea, Canada and the UK?
